NeuroFit360 Physical Therapy Technician (Tech) Job Description

The Physical Therapy Technician works in an outpatient clinic designed to help individuals with neurological injuries continue to improve health, maintain fitness, and prevent unwanted secondary health problems such as skin break down, joint contractures, and muscle atrophy. The tech must be a detail-oriented individual who works in harmony with clinical staff to support all aspects of physical therapy interventions and treatments during client sessions. They must be capable of physically helping clients to move around and are responsible for setting up appropriate equipment. Organizing and cleaning treatment areas, monitoring equipment, and arranging supplies are also part of a tech's responsibility. A successful physical therapy technician should have a compassionate, courteous, and friendly personality, enjoy helping people, and is detail-oriented.

Physical Therapy Technician Responsibilities:

- Efficient in the two-person transfer method
- Clean, disinfect, and prepare treatment areas and equipment before and after each session
- Organize clinic, make sure appropriate equipment is turned off
- Assist to witness necessary paperwork, such as incident reports
- Inform the office manager to order supplies
- Coordinate transfers and ensure clients get in and out of cars and into the clinic safely
- Take pictures and videos for training and marketing purposes

Physical Therapy Technician Requirements:

- High school diploma or GED
- Previous clinical experience and on-the-job training (preferred)
- Adherence to HIPAA regulations and protection of patients' privacy
- Good computer and technology skills (iPhone, iPad, drone, camera)
- Compassion and empathy when helping clients
- Physical stamina and capacity to assist with the transfer of clients up to 200lbs
- Ability to maintain composure and respond appropriately in a high pace setting
- Capacity to anticipate emergency responses and client safety compromise
- Preferred interest in physical therapy and or therapeutic exercise. Previous clinical experience and on-the-job training

*The successful candidate will travel to NeuroFit360's home office in Cooper City Florida for training prior to the start of the position.
